RYE is a design brand creating bedroom interiors that anchor the senses and encourage rest. With an emphasis on honest materials the brand has built a collection of furniture and mattresses.

Since launching, RYE has refined its aesthetic principles by merging historical references with a contemporary exploration of form. Inspired by analog living the brand incorporates a thoughtfully sourced and selected range of natural materials to create an expression of sculptural design and tactile depth.

Drawing on the insights of sustainable thinking, RYE has established its own production facilities in the Danish Lake Highlands. The local embeddedness offers a more conscious way of producing - one that is materialized through quality based craftsmanship and a made-to-order philosophy.

RYE recognizes its responsibility to act sustainably as a fundamental and holistic practice.

The climate crisis of today is a cultural crisis too. It refers to a contemporary world that continuously accelerates its pace with the consequence of mental and environmental exhaustion. As a brand that is centered around the bedroom, RYE consciously explores how sleep can act as an alternate narrative.

Influenced by analog spaces, the brand intends to preserve the bedroom as a place for withdrawal, presence and rest, inspiring a slower, more sustainable way of living.

Each piece of the collection is created for the years to come. This ideal of permanence is carried into the production practice, aligning with essential lifecycle principles. The process includes a careful selection of materials, experienced craftsmanship and a conscious design and development process that enables easy disassembly and repair of the products. At the core of it all lies the continuous refining of an in-house production expertise, specialized in made-to-order principles that eliminate excess transportation and unnecessary waste.

Established in 2016, RYE is anchored in the soil of the Lake Highland District in Denmark. In the rural station-town of Ry, the brand emerged from a family tradition of furniture making, and has continued this heritage and craftsmanship, developing the production facilities of its time-honored factory halls from 1981.

As a dogma, RYE follows the principle of made-to-order production, which has allowed the brand to operate within a responsible manufacturing, aligning each individual product with its customer. Consequently, a more organic cycle of production is maintained, leaving space for a thorough focus on the craft with a minimal amount of waste.

Celebrating the beauty of natural materials, RYE approaches the art of producing interiors as a humble act of mediation. The purpose is not so much in transforming raw materials, as it is in preserving their origin and conveying the stories the materials already contain.

A photograph of a bedroom interior. On the right, a bed with a light-colored wooden frame is dressed in white linens. The headboard wall is covered in a light-colored, heavily textured material, possibly plaster or a large-scale artwork. To the left of the bed, a dark wooden headboard is visible. A thick, vertical wooden pillar stands in the center-left, with a small, square, light-colored photograph pinned to its upper part. In the foreground on the left, a portion of a white, curved, upholstered chair or ottoman is visible. The floor is covered with a light-colored, textured rug or carpet. The overall atmosphere is rustic and minimalist.

Cubico Bed Frame, created by Italian designer Martina Branchetti, is a contemporary interpretation of a low-profile platform bed. Crafted from solid beech wood, a horizontal shape defined by chamfered edges is connected to four sturdy pillars, whose brutalist character creates a sense of rootedness within the bedroom. As the final touch, the wood is stained in one of two distinct pigmentations, recalling the tradition of Mediterranean mid-century furniture.

Dimensions

The bedroom is the most intimate and private area in every home. This calls for a personal and unique piece of furniture as the framework for this calm space. Thus, Cubico Bed Frame is made-to-measure to fit any bedroom. The bed is designed to accommodate a base and mattress from RYE, but is also compatible with other bases and mattresses. Please contact your dealer or RYE directly for more information.

The Beech Wood

The Cubico Bed Frame is made entirely from solid beech wood. A type of wood that features a subtle grain pattern with straighter lines and a more uniform expression when compared to oak wood. Two custom-made stains have been developed specifically for this bed frame and material, one light and one dark, which accentuate the delicate lines within the wood and give it a vintage feel.

A photograph of a minimalist interior space. On the left, a tall wooden cabinet with sliding doors is partially visible. In the center, a wooden shelving unit made of thick vertical posts and horizontal shelves stands against a light-colored wall. The shelves are mostly empty, with a few small objects on the second shelf from the bottom. To the right of the shelving unit, a small, dark wooden stool with a rounded top and three legs sits on a wooden floor. A glass of water is placed on the stool. The lighting is warm and directional, casting long shadows from the furniture onto the wall and floor. The word "Hem" is printed in white, sans-serif font in the center of the image.

Manufacturer: RYE, Denmark

Laying Height: 39 cm
Frame Height: 33 cm
Headboard Height: 61 cm

Variations

The Hem Bed Frame is a sculptural centerpiece for the bedroom, masterfully crafted from solid red oak. Designed by Nikolaj Lorentz Mentze, founder of Studio 0405, the bed follows an architectural principle of stacking, which lets the bed frame beautifully integrate layers of natural variation. As patterns of grain run through each element of oak wood, sequences of distinct patterns emerge, capturing nature in its most immediate form.

Dimensions

The bedroom is the most intimate and private area in every home. This calls for a personal and unique piece of furniture as the framework for this calm space. Thus, Hem Bed Frame is made-to-measure to fit any bedroom. The bed is designed to accommodate a base and mattress from RYE, but is also compatible with other bases and mattresses. Please contact your dealer or RYE directly for more information.

The Red Oak

The Hem Bed Frame is not only distinctive in its appearance, but also in its origin made solely from solid red oak. Red oak is a more sparsely used oak species within furniture production. Contrary to the more common white oak, the red oak tree features a raw material that has a reddish and warm hue within its grain, allowing for a new impression of the popular solid oak material.

Belgian Linen

Veng is upholstered in the finest Belgian linen. This linen derives from the area between Bruges and the border with France, where flax has been grown and woven into textiles for several generations. The flax is sown in March and harvested in July before being cured, spun, and finally woven. Our master upholsterers work with the linen at our production facilities in the Danish Lake Highlands, upholstering the beds using traditional methods.

Now reinterpreted, the dovetail shape runs down the sides of the Etagère, allowing for an easy way to connect individual side tables. Though distinctive in its own right, the Etagères can be arranged together in a variety of ways, composing sculptural objects that subtly elevate the space.

Etagère Side Table is designed to accommodate our beds, and so the height of the side table is adapted to the bed frame. The Red Oak

The Etagère Side Table is not only distinctive in its appearance, but also in its origin, being made solely from solid red oak. Red oak is a more sparsely used oak species within furniture production. Contrary to the more common white oak, the red oak tree features a raw material with a warm, reddish hue in its grain, offering a new interpretation of the popular solid oak material.
